I learned how to relate teaching standards to the material I will use as a teacher. The internship was really valuable as well. I really enjoyed the experience.

Classroom management, expectations for portfolio design, rational/reflection overview and YACIP design. How to set up Google surveys.

I learned about young adolescent development and the phases that they go through during the middle school years.

I learned that not every experience in the field is going to always be an enjoyable one but it will be a valuable experience nonetheless. I learned a lot about a class that was really hard to get to know and ultimately enjoy, but that made me all the more determined to try and reach out to the students. I think I learned to be ok with myself in that I am trying my best to reach out and be advocate for these students but not all students are going to be as receptive as other groups I have had in the past. Even though, like I said, this experience may not have the most enjoyable but I have leaned some very valuable teaching experiences.

I have learned quite a bit through the internship and through all of the classes in Block I. It is though to choose anything especially important because I feel that it will all help us as middle school teachers.

What have you learned in this class that you think will be most valuable to you as a teacher?
I think the most valuable thing I learned from this class is how to construction questions and do research to learn about the community of students and the community I will teach in.
Classroom management ideas and books to read. As well as the YACIP is a great resource for lesson planning.
I think understanding that my best is all I can give. It's a hard lesson but one that I'm glad that I've learned early on and is oke with before I get into the teaching field.
I feel that the NC Teaching Standards is crucial to being a teacher (especially in NC)

Please comment on the value of your field experience/internship.
My internship at Ashe County Middle School was a very valuable experience. After being out of middles school for such a long period it really helped to get back into that setting. It made me realize the importance of a middle school structure. I think it is also important in that it will help ease me into the other internship and then student teaching.
I learned a lot, it was a great way to get my feet wet with young adolescents, content knowledge, and classroom structure.
I feel like being in the field has been the best experience because I got to see first hand how the students are in the classroom and how to deal with certain situations.
I really felt like that my internship was extremely important, almost more than my other classes because this was the place that I was going to really learn the most and be able to implement the things that I have learned over the past few years.
I loved my master teacher and I feel that it gave me something to strive towards when I become a teacher in the very near future. This experience was vital to me becoming a teacher and realizing that middles school is really where I want to be.

Please comment on activities and/or requirements, examinations, and/or evaluation strategies of the class.
I did enjoy the YACIP project. Learning about the students in my internship helped me get to know them and their backgrounds better.
I think they are all important and I would not change them in any way.
Book club, advocacy project, reading responses.
I felt like the Young Adolescent Culture Inquiry Project was valuable because the information that we collected was very valuable for us to know who the students were in our classrooms.

I feel that all of the requirements were reasonable and achievable. I found the YACIP project to be eye opening and it was a good experience to gather that information.

If you were to take this course again, what would you like to see changed?

Lectures were a little dull but the professors in the middle grades program are really nice, caring, and helpful.

I think that having students working together in larger groups would be beneficial. The larger groups did not have to do as much as though with only one or two students.

Nothing, I enjoyed the course.

I learned a lot in this class but I do wish I had seen my advising professor more often in my classroom. I think I only saw her once and it wasn't when any students were in the room. I taught several times and I believe I did email her inviting her to the classroom, but I have been having emailing problems through out the semester so I'm not sure if that had a role in why I didn't see my advising professor in classroom in my internship.

I think the course was great!

Please provide additional comments and suggestions you care to make.

I really enjoyed the class and it was very beneficial to me as a prospective teacher.
